Print-Plus-Online subscriptions – Include a print copy of the 2009 journal(s) plus online access to the previous thirteen years of journals (1997-2009). Price depends on institution size categories. Subscribers will be asked to supply IP addresses for online access.

Online-Only Subscriptions – Include online access to the previous thirteen years of journals (1997-2009). Price depends on institutions size categories. Subscribers will be asked to supply IP addresses for online access.

Ecological Applications – publishes ecological research and discussion papers of specific relevance to environmental problem-solving, policy, and management. The audience includes basic and applied scientists who deal with global climate change and biogeochemistry, conservation biology, ecotoxicology and pollution ecology, fishery and wildlife ecology, forestry, agro-ecosystems, range management, soils, hydrology and groundwater, landscape ecology, and epidemiology. Ecological Applications began publication in 1991.

Ecology and Ecological Monographs – are the leading international journals in the field of ecology. They contain articles and essays that report and interpret the results of original scientific research in basic and applied ecology. These journals are widely recognized as essential tools for ecologists, resource planners and managers, conservationists and professionals in botany, zoology, entomology, limnology, oceanography, forestry, fisheries, range management, agronomy, and crop protection. Ecology was established in 1920, and Ecological Monographs began publication in 1931.

ESA Bulletin – An on-line publication only, the Bulletin contains announcements and programs of meetings of the Society and related organizations, information about awards and future activities, reports on financial matters, and other items of current interest to ecologists. It is a more of an information publication than the journals.

Frontiers in Ecology and The Environment – International in scope and interdisciplinary approach, Frontiers focuses on current ecological issues and environmental changes. It contains peer-reviewed, synthetic review articles and short research communications on all aspects of ecology, the environment and related disciplines.

IMPORTANT INSTRUCTIONS FOR SUBSCRIPTION AGENTS

AGENCY ORDERING:

1. Please place orders by “client,” not by journal. If a client is renewing or subscribing to more than one journal, please list all of the journals at the same time.
2. No journal subscriptions will be accepted for the current year (2009) after 9/15/2009. These journals must be purchased as back issues. Order forms can be obtained online or by contacting ESA at: 1990 M Street, NW, Suite 700, Washington, DC 20036. Phone (202) 833-8773, Fax (202) 833-8775, Email: membership@esa.org.
3. AGENCY REMITTANCE ADVICE – Appropriate remittances should accompany checks made payable in US Dollars only to: The Ecological Society of America, PO Box 96121, Washington, DC 20090-6121. Foreign orders should use drafts on US banks or US postal money orders. Visa or MasterCard orders may be faxed to: (202) 833-8775. A copy of the renewal form must accompany the check to guarantee proper posting to the subscribers account.
4. SUBSCRIPTION ID NUMBERS – The subscription identification number is printed on the renewal notice. This ID number must be referenced on all orders, correspondence, checks, purchase orders and claims. Correspondence and claims sent to the Ecological Society of America without a subscription ID number will experience delays in processing.
5. CLAIMS– Claims from US subscribers will be honored if received within five (5) months of the issue mail date. Claims from non-US subscribers will be honored if received within ten (10) months of the issue mail date. Please allow 8-10 weeks for claim processing.

CONTACT – For help in resolving subscription problems or any other subscription-related business, please contact the Subscription Department at (202) 833-8773 Ext-216, fax (202) 833-8775, or Email membership@esa.org.

THANK YOU. We look forward to working with you to continue to bring the best ecological literature to your library patrons worldwide.
