

The Ecological Society of America's
Focus on Ecologists Project Presents:

2015 Whittaker Distinguished Ecologist Award Inderjit

The Whittaker Distinguished Ecologist Award recognizes an ecologist with an earned doctorate, and an outstanding record of contributions in ecology, who is not a U.S. citizen and is not currently residing in the U.S.

Professor Inderjit of the University of Delhi, has contributed extensively on the insight and experimental work in the mechanisms responsible for plant invasions. Not only have his ideas been influential, he has had many publications in high impact journals. Professor Inderjit lives and works in India where he is also the Director of the Center for the Study of Degraded Ecosystems.